

DIRECT ACTION

The single player Anarchist themed card game played with a standard 54 playing card deck (including Jokers).

How to play

1. Separate the Jacks, Queens, and Kings from the rest of the cards, and shuffle the rest.
2. Place 12 random cards face-down in a cross shape with a random face up card in the center.

3. Then place the face cards on top in order from the center: King, Queen, Jack; organized by suit.

4. The Jack represents the security guard, the Queen is the police force, and the King is the spy agency.

5. Draw 5 cards and choose any or all cards of the same suit to combine into a number.

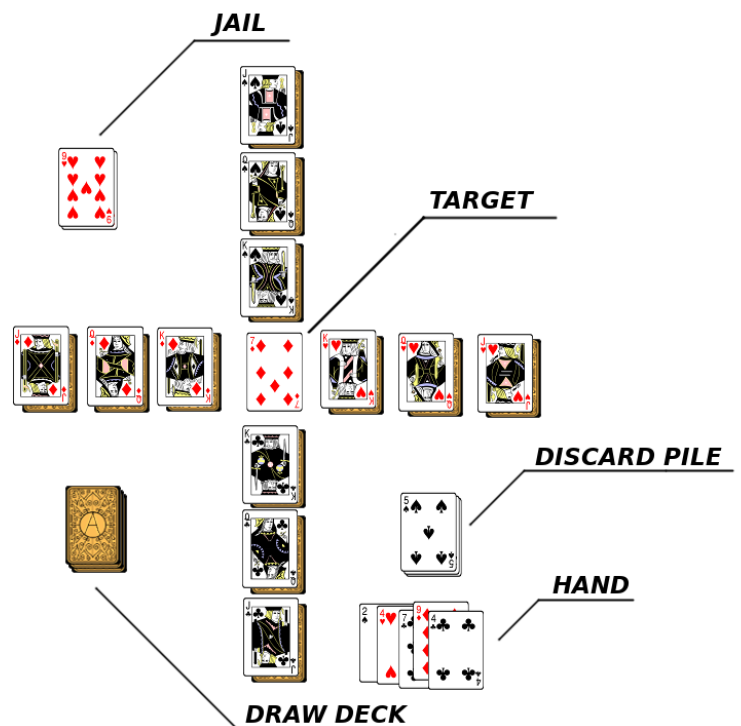

6. If that number is above 10, you can defeat the security guards (Jack) of that same suit. The police force (Queen) is 15 and the spy agency (King) is 20. You must defeat these in order starting with the security guards.

7. Once you have defeated all the forces of a suit, you have an opportunity to finally commit your direct action! To commit your direct action on the target card, you need 20 + that card's number. If the target is an Ace, you need 20 of that same suit and any Ace. If the target is a Joker, you need 20 of any one suit and a Joker.

8. If you cannot defeat any forces that turn, you must choose a card at random from your hand and "arrest" it by sending it to a "jail" pile. If you draw a Joker, you may replace any jailed card with your Joker. An ace counts as a copy of any card of the same suit from the discard pile.

9. If you are able to overtake one of the forces of a side, place the cards from your hand under the face card, turn it sideways, and place the face down card on top. That face up card now counts as a card in your hand, but doesn't get discarded with your hand.

10. Once you have either gotten past a security force, or you have lost a card to arrest, discard the rest of your hand, and repeat step 5. If you have run out of cards in the draw deck, shuffle the discard pile and make that your new draw deck. You lose if you "run out of time and resources" (no more cards to draw from).

Fuck patriarchy, fuck white supremacy, fuck capitalism, fuck fascism. Have fun!
